Introduction

Most children enjoy engaging in imaginative play that relates to, and makes sense of, the world that they live in. For lots of children (particularly boys) this imaginative play contains a strong element of weapon and Super Hero re-enactment. Re-enacting weapon use is a universal language of play for children and usually results in high levels of engagement for the children actively involved in it.

Images and ideas gleaned from the media are common starting points in boys' play and may involve characters with special powers or weapons. Adults can find this type of play particularly challenging and have a natural instinct to stop it. We believe it is not necessary as long as practitioners help the children to understand and respect the rights of other children, and to take responsibility for the resources and environment.

Creating situations so that boys' interests in these forms of play can be fostered through healthy and safe risk-taking will enhance every aspect of their learning and development.

Rational

At Our Lady Star of the Sea Nursery we feel it is important to create a whole setting approach of which staff, children, parents, management committee and other agencies have a clear understanding. This policy is a formal statement of our approach to children's weapon and super hero imaginative play.

Aims

Children learn best through active play, first-hand experiences, creativity and critical thinking. As they learn and develop, they actively build their own meanings by applying, revising and reapplying what they know. Boys often appear to be more active learners than girls; but whether or not there is a gender divide in this respect active learners need opportunities to make their own decisions, and to have control over their learning to keep their interest and to develop their creativity.

Equal Opportunities and Inclusion

The children and parents are actively involved in the education process at Our Lady Star of the Sea Nursery and their perceptions about weapon and super hero play are explored and valued.

The staff regularly evaluate the impact that actively fostering this element of role play has on the environment, the cohort as a whole and identified groups of children and individuals. If required a range of support strategies will be put in place to ensure that this style of play does not have any negative impact.

Principles that underpin the policy

The principles that underpin our transition policy are:

- Approaches to teaching and learning in role play which reflect the interests of the children and not exclusively those of the adults
- Planning for role play in the environment should be based upon assessment information from the observed play of the current cohort.
- The setting acknowledges the positive aspects of the character of the superhero and highlight the negative aspects of weapon use and physical violence at a level that is appropriate to the age and needs of the children. This will be mainly done through story, drama and appropriate discussion.
- Styles of teaching and learning meet the needs of children and not pre conceived notions of what is or is not appropriate role play.
- All children's emotional welfare, wellbeing and involvement are assessed in relation to this style of play.
- Children should enjoy the play opportunity.
- The weapon/superhero play should motivate and challenge children.
- The creation of an effective culture of weapon/superhero play takes time, and is a process rather than an event.
- Parents and carers feel well informed about, and comfortable with nursery's approach to Weapon/Superhero play, and the principals that underpin it.
- Children, parents/carers and staff are involved on an equal basis in the formulation and regular review of this policy.
- Effective and engaging play is about our setting fitting the interests of the child, not the child fitting the setting.
- On-going opportunities for quality imaginative play are not overlooked or left to chance, but thought about and planned in advance.

Initial preparations

All staff are aware of the thinking that underpins this policy and build its review into our self evaluation schedule.

- All staff observe children's individual and group imaginative play identifying themes that result in high level engagement.
- Time allocated within planning meetings to discuss the on-going development and management of the nursery's approach to weapon/superhero play.
- Case studies, further reading and research into this type of play is available for parent, carer and practitioner reference within the setting.
- An appropriate space both indoor and outdoor is designated for the development of this style of play.
- Resources and enhancements (including appropriate construction materials) are put in place to specifically support this style of play.
- Arrangements are made for passing on information to parents about how/why the nursery will use, manage and enhance Weapon/Superhero play.
- This policy will be shared with all staff and managing/governing bodies as its content will impact on other adults' approaches to Weapon/Superhero play in other areas of the setting.

Creating an appropriate environment

The types of play that boys and girls engage in is enhanced or diminished by the quality of the learning environment inside and out. Practitioners must take responsibility for ensuring the learning environment is planned to inspire, challenge and intrigue every child. However, sometimes practitioners find the chosen play of boys more difficult to understand and value than that of girls. They may choose activities in which adults involve themselves least, or play that involves more action and a greater use of the available space, especially outdoors.

"Some boys who are at risk of becoming disaffected at a very young age have shown significant improvements if their learning takes place outside. Opportunities which reflect all six areas of learning outdoors must be available." (Bilton et al 2005.)

Practitioners need to be aware of the impact of both the emotional and physical environment on the well-being and self-esteem of all children:

Practitioners will:

- involve themselves as much in the boys' choice of role play and learning experiences as the girls'.
- see the physical environment as one of the most powerful resources through which children can learn ,and carefully plan and monitor how it is used.
- value the outdoor as much as the indoor environment, thinking creatively about the environment and how it can support weapon/superhero role play.
- experiences and activities we have on offer ensure we meet the needs of boys as well as girls.
- are aware that sometimes an interest may be sparked by something immediate in the environment, or something much more long term, such as interest in weapon/superhero play.
- ensure role-play areas incorporate boys' play themes allowing children to fetch and move resources from one place to another, to enhance their play themes.
- ensure all children take equal responsibility in caring for the environment of the setting, tidying up and looking after equipment and each other, fostering a sense of social responsibility.

Building on what children know and understand

Our Lady Star of the Sea Nursery will ensure that, through training and development, all staff are aware of the impact of both the emotional and physical environment on the well-being and self-esteem of all children:

- ensure that there are regular opportunities for 'unplanned' role play to allow for children's self-expression and staff observation.
- monitor and record and evaluate the positive aspects of the play that they see, incorporating preferences and themes into future planning.
- ensure that the physical environment both indoor and outdoor contains resources that will support and promote children's play.
- provide a variety of resources, some that replicate actual objects alongside others that will be open ended and ambiguous to allow for individual interpretation and foster an approach of imagination and creativity.
- be aware that the success of some themes and enhancements will differ between cohorts/groups of children, therefore plan to the needs of the current cohort and not necessarily deliver previous plans without evaluation and amendment.

Partnership with parents

At Our Lady Star of the Sea Nursery we encourage parents and carers to be involved by:

- Asking parents and carers their opinion.
- Inviting parents and carers into our setting to discuss the positive impact of Weapon/Superhero play and its impact on attainment.
- Sending home information about the general benefit of weapon/superhero play and how it is positively impacting on their child.
- Encouraging parents and carers to come in and help in the setting.

Continuing Professional Development

- The staff in the setting deliver the Early Years Foundation Stage (2017) framework, fully understanding how interpret learning and development in relation to role play.
- All Staff are confident in making assessments through the observation of children/key children.
- Staff plan opportunities for role play collaboratively checking that continuity and progressions are evident and based on children's preferences and interests.
