

"There is something I very much want to say to you. I hope that among those of you listening to me today there are some of the future saints of the twenty-first century. What God wants most of all for each one of you, is that you should become holy! He loves you much more than you could ever begin to imagine. He wants the very best for you. And by far the best thing for you is to grow in holiness."

Pope Benedict reminds us:

"We live in a celebrity culture, and young people are often encouraged to model themselves on figures from the world of sport or entertainment. My question for you is this: what are the qualities you see in others that you would most like to have yourselves? What kind of person would you really like to be?" Having money makes it possible to be generous and to do good in the world, but on its own, it is not enough to make us happy. Being highly skilled in some activity or profession is good, but it will not satisfy us unless we aim for something greater still. It might make us famous, but it will not make us happy. Happiness is something we all want, but one of the

Blessed Pier Giorgio Frassati (1901—1925)

What are the qualities in others that you would most like to have yourself?

Person	The qualities they have	Say why you would like to have them

Look back at the saints we have studied this term—who has been the most inspirational for you? Why?
